GravityKit Launches GravityMigrate (Beta)—A New All-In-One Migration Plugin for Gravity Forms

GravityMigrate makes it easy for users to migrate all of their Gravity Forms data, including forms, entries, feed configurations, Views, workflows, and more.

LEVERETT, Massachusetts (August 1, 2023)—GravityKit have launched a new plugin, adding to their toolkit of powerful Gravity Forms add-ons. GravityMigrate makes it easy to export and import Gravity Forms data from one website to another. The plugin allows users to combine all of their forms and related data (including settings, entries, Views, feeds, uploaded files, workflows, etc.) into a single export file which can then be imported to a new website with a single click.

“We built GravityMigrate because we knew it would be a huge time-saver for our users. Having an easy way to move Gravity Forms data between websites is incredibly useful for power users and site builders,” said Zack Katz, GravityKit’s Founder. “We can’t wait for people to start using it, we think it’s going to be a game-changer.”

A Robust, Time-Saving Import/Export Plugin Requiring No Technical Knowledge

Whether migrating to a new domain, or moving from staging to production, GravityMigrate provides users with a simple solution for efficiently managing and migrating all of their important Gravity Forms data. Users have the ability to select which data is imported and exported, giving them fine control over the migration process. Form settings, add-on configurations, and calculations are preserved during migration.

GravityMigrate fully supports Nested Forms by Gravity Wiz, Gravity Flow, and other popular add-ons for Gravity Forms. WordPress multisite installations are also supported.

“As the Gravity Forms ecosystem continues to develop, there is a growing need for a way to move important form-related data from one site to another. GravityMigrate fulfills this need in a simple and elegant way,” said Travis Totz, Director of Brand and Marketing at Rocketgenius, Inc. (the creators of Gravity Forms).
